MEMORANDUM FOR: Deputy Director for Support

SUBJECT : Monitoring Presentations to Agency Audiences
by Non-Agency Speakers

REFERENCE : Memo to DTR fr Ex Dir-Compt dtd 2 Nov 65
Same Subj as above

1. We can ensure that presentations to OTR courses by non-Agency speakers will be monitored and reported on as requested. It is also possible to extend the requirement to Agency participants in many external training programs. During their processing through the Registrar's office, personnel attending Senior Officers Courses can be briefed specifically to be alert for and report on items of interest. An example of this -- a report from an Agency officer now attending the Army War College was included in our Weekly Activities Report of 23 September 1965. In similar fashion and to the extent possible we can include individuals participating in other Agency-sponsored external courses. We do not believe it is feasible or worth the effort to reach those individuals attending self-sponsored programs.

2. You raised the question of other important presentations arranged outside of training and of which OTR may be unaware. A review of most Agency training courses conducted by components other than OTR indicates there is little likelihood that the rare guest speaker will cover subject matter of interest to the Office of the Director. In-house programs such as those of the Offices of Communications and Security use their own personnel almost exclusively, with occasional participation by a technical expert.

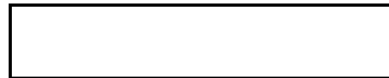

25X1 3. A non-OTR activity which we can cover is the Agency's Military Reserve Training. [redacted] as the J-3, can easily provide for monitoring and reporting on appropriate speakers. In addition, the Agency representatives at the NIS and the DIS, although they are in attendance under different circumstances, have been instructed to be watchful for pertinent remarks made to their respective groups. These, as in the case cited above, have in the past been sources of interesting information.

4. If the DDCI is interested in coverage on non-training presentations, we believe that this is more appropriately the responsibility of the sponsoring components and any results thereof are best reported directly.
